Capt. Evee LeBlanc Dies

One hundred year old Capt. Evee LeBlanc, died Thursday, Sept. 28 in the Yarmouth Regional Hospital.

Capt. Evee LeBlanc started fishing tuna commercially when he was a teenager.

He was active in the early 1930's when the attempt at fishing tuna on rod and reel began in the area in 1935.

In 1936 when the late U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt fished for tuna here, Capt. LeBlanc was chief guide under the direction of the late William Gray, of Florida, who was director of operations for the Wedgeport Guides at that time. The president was unable to hook a bluefin that day, but saw other anglers boating several tuna nearby. Later Capt. Evee LeBlanc received a note from the President, as well as a photograph of himself and Capt. LeBlanc.

When Michael Lerner and his personal guide, Tommy Gifford, arrived at the LeBlanc home one evening and asked for a boat, it was with some reservations that Capt. Evee LeBlanc and the late Sam LeBlanc agreed.

The rest is history Lerner caught three the first day, and promptly sent telegrams to big time anglers in New York, and they came by the dozen making the area internationally known.

Surviving are three sons, Leonard, who lives in New Jersey; Alphonse in Halifax; and Edward at Wedgeport.

FORMER MAYOR DIED LAST WEEK — Jack Trask, former Mayor of the town of Yarmouth died on Friday. Photo was taken while he was mayor. (Fred A. Hatfield Photo).

Jack Trask — Former Mayor Died Friday

YARMOUTH — John C. (Jack) Trask, Yarmouth's 22nd mayor, died Friday, Feb. 16, at his home on 27 Carlton Street. He was 62.

Mr. Trask was first elected to town council in an election made necessary due to the resignation of a councillor in 1960. He was subsequently re-elected and was the town's deputy mayor for seven years.

In 1974, following Fred Emin's announcement that he would not seek re-election as mayor Trask sought the town's highest elected office. He defeated William Mooney in the mayoralty contest (1,530 votes to 891 votes) and served as mayor until 1976 when he stepped down from council activities.

Mr. Trask was active in the Yarmouth Fire Department having served as Captain of Naiad company for nine years until December 1965 when he became a veteran of the department.

He was a member of the fire department for 20 years and fire commissioner for seven years.

Mr. Trask's term as president of the Firefighters Museum of Nova Scotia would have expired later this year.

As a member of town council and during his campaign for the office of mayor Mr. Trask said he was in favour of building a new transmission line from Lake George to Yarmouth; and acquiring the services of a town manager. [illegible] elected he would give up his $5,000 salary to go towards the costs of having a town manager.

Mr. Trask also favoured the ward system an issue that was decided during the 1974 mayoralty election and later implemented.

Although he was deputy-mayor for 7 years probably his most important function in that capacity occurred during the police strike when Mayor Fred Emin was out of town attending a function in Cape Breton. Mr. Trask called special meetings and outlined plans for action in the event the police strike posed serious threats to the town. On one occassion, a rarity in local politics he called a special open meeting for a Sunday to deal with the police strike.

He was a past member of the Yarmouth Kiwanis Club, the Yarmouth Rotary Club, the Y's Men's Club and the SPCA.

Born in Yarmouth, he was a son of the late Frederick and Edith (Ferguson) Trask.

At the time of his death he was a supervisor with Irving Oil Ltd., Yarmouth, where he was employed for the past 30 years.

He was vice-chairman of the Yarmouth Regional Hospital board. He was past president of Yarmouth Boy Scouts.

Surviving are his wife, the former Catherine Nickerson; three daughters, Mrs. Margaret Ann Christian, Port Hawkesbury; Cathy (Mrs. Richard Wallace), Argyle; Heather, at home; a son, Brian, Halifax; two brothers, Cecil, Brooklyn; Frederick, Yarmouth; two sisters, Mrs. Marilyn Bailey, Toronto; Mrs. Muriel Moores, Yarmouth' five grandchildren.

He was predeceased by a sister and a brother.

Shelburne — Two fatal accidents occurred in the area during the past week.

RCMP report the body of 23-year-old Christopher Tanner, Blue Rocks, Lunenburg County, was recovered from Shelburne harbour the March 1. Mr. Tanner was a crewman on the scallop vessel "Sharon Dawn II" out of Lunenburg.

The vessel visited the government wharf in Shelburne early in the morning of Feb. 27 with mechanical problems. The crewman was discovered missing, and it was speculated at the time that he may have fallen overboard.

Dragging operations began the following day, and the body was discovered a short distance from the wharf.

Mr. Tanner was married, with two children.

Another young man lost his life Sunday afternoon when the motorcycle on which he was a passenger went out of control and left the roadway.

Dead is 15-year-old Rocky Lee Williams, Jordan Branch Road. (See "W")

No other details of the accident are available as we go to press. (Mar 7. 1978)

Pubnico - The body of John Keith Thorburn, 79, of Sandy Point, was found Wednesday, Oct. 31 in the woods near East Pubnico Head.

Yarmouth County RCMP said Mr. Thorburn was reported missing Oct. 24. He was last seen in Yarmouth Oct. 25 by a member of the Yarmouth County RCMP detachment. At the time, he was asking for directions back to Shelburne.

Police said the missing man's car was located on an old woods road near East Pubnico Head and a search, involving 50 men and a lands and forest helicopter, was begun there.

The body was found in a canoe floating on a small lake. The cause of death has not yet been determined, but police said it appeared the man died either of exposure or a heart attack. Foul play is not suspected.

A small poodle belonging to Mr. Thorburn was found alive with his body.

RCMP said the man, who lived by himself, was known to sometimes become disoriented. While driving from Yarmouth to Sandy Point he apparently made a wrong turn and drove several miles up a woods road. He then appeared to have left his car and become lost, police said.
